FISHPOND

WORLDFLYANGLER

FISHPOND

To our valued dealer partners, conservation allies, and loyal customers,

Much of what shapes Fishpond starts outside our building. It comes from conversations in fly shops, time on the water, and feedback from guides and anglers who use our gear every day. This year, that input helped lead to important product updates, stronger partnerships, and continued support for the people and places that have always guided Fishpond.

As a family-owned, privately held company, we make decisions close to the source. That means product changes don't come from guesswork or trend reports. They come from the places where the gear is actually used and the people who know what works. That independence matters to anglers who care where their gear comes from and what the company behind it stands for.

Fly shops remain one of our most important connections to the field. They know what anglers are asking for, what guides depend on, and what products earn the stamp of approval. This year, their perspective helped shape new products across packs, bags, and accessories, bringing practical input from the field into the design process.

The reworked Thunderhead collection is one of the clearest examples of that connection. For 2027, we've rebuilt the line around a new high-tensile HD fabric made from 100% recycled single-use plastic water bottles. It's waterproof, highly abrasion-resistant, and made for the places submersible gear isn't optional, from raft floors and skiff decks to rocks, salt spray, heavy rain, and years of travel. The new Nomad TPU Net Bag takes a similar approach. It is lighter, tougher, PVC-free, and engineered to stretch instead of fail.

The same care we put into product decisions carries into the partnerships we choose. This year, our work with Bonefish & Tarpon Trust helped support mangrove restoration in Abaco and Grand Bahama, where BTT, the Bahamas Mangrove Alliance, local guides, students, and volunteers have now planted more than 150,000 mangroves. We also joined Protect Our Winters Water Alliance, with 50% of sales from Fishpond x POW products going directly to the organization. The partnership connects to clean water, public lands, climate action, and the flows that tie high mountain snowpack to rivers, estuaries, and the communities downstream. Drought continues to pressure cold water fisheries across the West. That work will stay front and center in 2027 through partnerships, local events, and support for organizations giving anglers practical ways to get involved.

To the shops that keep us connected, the guides who rely on our gear day after day, the partners protecting access, habitat, and water, and the anglers who choose Fishpond year after year, thank you. Your trust, feedback, and support continue to shape Fishpond. We enter 2027 grateful for what this community has helped build, and ready to keep earning our place in it.

With sincere appreciation,

Ben Kurtz Will Kurtz World Fly Angler Team
